

Thomas B. Martin
Inducted 2003

Tom Martin's connection to Stepinac did not end with his graduation in 1965. Through commitment and abundant generosity, he has become a loyal member of Stepinac's Alumni Association. In fact, his generosity has helped pay for the education of needy students who would otherwise not be able to afford Stepinac's tuition.

Tom's spirit and enthusiasm for Stepinac began during his successful four years at the school where he excelled academically. His keen intelligence accompanied him to Holy Cross College and to Fordham University Law School, where he successfully studied to become a tax attorney. Tom's educational accomplishments did not end here, as he also successfully earned a Master of Science Degree in Financial Services.

Tom is presently the owner and President of Circle Advisers, Incorporated, a diversified investment advisory and financial services firm. In his capacity as president, he has provided financial counseling to many senior advertising executives and has served as an advisor to numerous agencies on executive compensation issues.

In addition to the excellent education Tom received at Stepinac, he also found enduring love when he met his life-long companion, his wife, Kathy. Over the past 31 years they have raised 3 terrific children who have greatly enriched their wonderful lives.

This evening, the Community of Archbishop Stepinac celebrates the loyalty, generosity, success and devotion of Tom Martin. With a deep sense of gratitude and admiration we proudly induct him into the Hall of Fame.
